I used to dream that I could fly
It made me happy, it made me so immensely sad
I watch the people passing by
And I can't believe that I've got anything to add

You say you love me 'til the end
Tears are burning in my eyes, though I know I should be glad
Afraid to see around the bend
Cause I can't believe that there is anything to add

There's a remedy
There has to be, there has to be
Some rivers left to cross for me somewhere
There's a place for me
There has to be, there has to be
This light is coming down on me somehow

I hear the whisper in the tree
I can't decide if it's good or if it's bad
I just know it's all for me
And that it's complete, there isn't anything to add

There's a remedy
Some rivers left to cross for me somewhere
There's a place for me
There has to be, there has to be
This light is coming down on me somehow
