"Apologize"

I've apologized once too many times
I would be left with words unspoken Breathing every new breath broken Retreating myself to these meaningless apologies

Take the steps leading towards the right direction; the path leading forward Imperfection at it's finest and there's no other words I would say to you were always discouraged

This is the second time around That we've come undone
By too many doubtful words
Of discouragement from anything obtainable

I've tried for way to long now I've been trying and I've been holding on

Take the steps leading towards the right direction; the
path leading forward
Imperfection at it's finest and there's no other words I would say to you were always discouraged

I can feel your eyes burning in my head Your words were just too late for my heart I've got no other place to go now But every word you said was truthful

Take the steps leading towards the right direction; the
path leading forward Imperfection at it's finest we'll take the time to realize that well always have new wounds [There's no other words I would say to you, they were always discouraged]
