stone the world is stone
it's no trick of the light it's hard on the soul

cold to the touch and hard on the soul in the grey of the streets in the neon unknown
i look for a sign that im not on my own that im not here alone

as the still of the night and the choke of the air and the winners delight and the losers despair closes in left and right i would love not ot care

from the far away look without stars in my eyes throught the halls of the rich and the flats of the poor wherever i go theres no warmth anymore theres no love anymore

so i turn on my heels im declining the fall ive had all i can take with my back to the wall tell the world im not in im not taking the call

but i saw it once with the stars in my eyes when each colour rang out in a thunderous chrome

i cant find my way home in a world made of stone
