from the alleys to the valleys see 'em ridin' just like sally when you wake up in the middle and you just can't stay i've seen the movies and the groovies and i'm searching for a ruby in the gutter with a promise and i'm on my way

send us all to high school make us pray to statues so we hang on corners lookin' bored all the rubbish that you cherish with your hedonistic pleasures and your latest status symbols just can't stay

seen the majors chase the minors with the military blinders dangle carrots in the faces of the u.s.a.

i hate the local stiffness and all the capitol sickness you know they're waiting on a war

whisper in my ear dear (tell me something)
why does suicide have such appeal (never nothin')
no way-goin'
like sailors
and valentine
failures
ducking rejection with walls of protection

degeneration

cross the nation
lonely callers masturbation for a minute

all the wheelers and the dealers and the zombies kill the feelings with a bottle and a vial

i seen my mother
watch her dreams just smother

don't wanna sing the graveyard song

why do you pretend it ain't fucking real (never nothin')
no way-heart felt attraction that never takes action just meetings and functions and social corruptions

all your niches and your stitches i'm not lyin' back and wishin' for a cinderella savior and i just can't stay call us fags and call us phonies but i make the ginamone and you hate it cause i shake it

i can't wait till christmas barking in the darkness a broken hero at the bar

why does suicide have such appeal
(never nothin')

no way out
no way now
no way!

fire to ashes
and candy store flashes scars from the gashes
and yesterday passes

from the alleys to the valleys
when you wake up and you
