The time has come to awaken
Ignore the memories of defeat
The time has come to do what's right for you
Not for what those around you want you to

The world around us has a method
Seems a simple recipe
The best arrangement was born in you
Not acquired from around you outside of you

It's quite easy to be complacent
With so many obstacles in the way
It's critical you walk the path wherever to
And not let it walk for you the way it wants to

Chorus:
Every night I pray I won't be late for the game
Before you know it, you're old and gray
If you miss your calling, you're to blame
When the sun goes down I know that today
I did things my way

The day will come when you feel jaded
And where you're going is hard to see
Keep your direction in a strait line
And not veer off away to a place you don't want to

Chorus

(Musical Interlude)
I can hear my calling... Can you hear your calling
I can hear my calling... Can you hear your calling
Chorus
At night I pray, I won't be late
At night I pray, I won't be old and gray
I won't be blamed for I missed my calling
When the sun goes down I know that today, I did things
my way
