How I miss the cold winter's night, this spring is not for me

This is the dark season of my soul, so leave me be

This cold comes from within, there is no way you can take part

Darkness is upon me and there is frost deep down inside my heart

Darkness, darkness... How I long for you to caress my cheek,

To touch me with your ice-cold hand and whisper "Light will never

Be..."

Once again we'll walk like lovers, both together hand in hand

At break of day we'll find our cover, sheltered by our covenant

But now as light reappears

I walk with you, this is all we share

In tears I cry, we have to part

Feel the cold of my loneliness...

Nightfall, I await you, greet me with your silent wind

In your world I feel at home, no-one else dares thread here in

Let loose the powers within you and pour down your rain so cold

Embrace me with your nothingness, and at last devour my soul
