Arise, arise and face the day head on These shattered wings still trying to heal, heal
So I slip into another skin, erasing forward progression
And stumbling across these boundaries again
Well is it me or have I been dissolved?

Infect, infected with the world's disease
Still singing to the insect song
So I endure at what a cost, put a price on my sanity
So hard to find body and mind
Both of which consumed by slow decay

What I need is so elusive
Antidote for the incurable
Living in fear of what the future brings
The future brings

Inject it into my life, the cure for this heartache
Inject it into my life, a moment of clarity
Inject it into my life, the reason to live one more day
My will is fading

Can you feel it? As the day now turns to night
I can feel my wounds begin to mend
I must preserve my strength
'Cause with the dawn they come again, they come again

Can you feel it? So I slip into another skin Erasing forward progression and stumbling on these boundaries again
Is it me or have I been dissolved like the sun in my night
Vicious circles burning up inside feel the pressure of falling apart
Energize, reassure my life

What I need is so elusive
Antidote for the incurable
Living in fear of what the future brings
The future brings

Inject it into my life, the cure for this heartache
Inject it into my life, a moment of clarity
Inject it into my life, the reason to live one more day
My will is fading
Fading
