Everytime I see you now it makes me feel so bad
Reminds me of the memories I wish I never had Standing in a crowded room too dark for me to see Someone's pushing from behind, just leave me room to Breathe

And go away from me, just go away
To another time, another place
To another world, another dream
Go away from me...

Walking down the sidewalk in a crowd that doesn't care
Bumping into shoulders every eye is on the street
There's a man with tattered clothes who's cursing at
The air
Everyone is slowing down to catch a little peak

And go away from me, just go away
To another time, another place
To another world, another dream
Go away from me...

Everytime I wake up and I see myself again
Staring in the mirror like a burnt out piece of wood
Searching every feature for a single trace of life
Couldn't find the answer 'cause the mirror never lies

And go away from me, just go away
To another time, another place
To another world, another dream
Go away from me...
