I went to the country to escape the noise and lights I laid there in the pine cones all night I woke in the morning and all the trees were gone I got this sinking feeling everything felt wrong

There were strip malls and dollar stores and diesel in the air
So I slept in a row boat and I anchored far from shore Now I don't hear them chainsaws no more

I woke in the morning
when someone pulled the plug I was stranded in the lake bottom sludge With all the tires, paint cans and things

Well,

Every little critter
with feather, fur & fin
cried to Mother Nature
to come back for them
for every piece of litter
for every little sin
She cried for all of them
feather, fur & fin
She cried for all of them
feather, fur & fin

So I went to an island down the Caribbean way
And I laid there in the sand all day I turned on a radio and I heard the DJ say: Well, batten down the hatches down Santa Elena way I swam the ocean reef, with coral all was gray

cried to Mother Nature
for every little sin
feather, fur & fin
feather, fur & fin

She saw the eagle's eye weeping in the willow She prayed to the mantis and she cried into her pillow for the salmon in the Fraser and the salamander's kin

Well, I went to the city when all the trees were gone and I laid there on a asphalt lawn And she cried out a thousand days of hurricanes and floods Her face ran with tears and the streets ran with blood Fur coats and sushi boats

feather, fur & fin
feather, fur & fin

Feather, fur & fin
for feather, fur & fin, she cried for every fin
