"Silence, And the Firmanent Withdrew"

Make all the cold trees mourn their branches frozen in sightless motion Waving, reaching for the whipping rain
There was silence and the firmanent withdrew revealing all, shapelessly and swiftly In carmine and crimson stood flaming the sky the relics if myths that exploded and died

Dismantle the sun and stars in their rise and rend from the skyline
the black in our eyes

The skyline so empty all but one, nonexistent

Words were not, nor gesture, thought or life
The skydancers laid slain and old
The firmanent in perpetual withdrawal

Lux Aeterna - sing unto the world
