I was at this carnival, just a few years ago
no big deal, ferris wheel, the same ol' stuff you know.
And I wandered around the grounds until I found this little tent,
- man outside made a speech, and this is how it went.
"she walks, she talks,
she crawls on her belly like a reptile"
it was the same ole line ...except for one part,
said you don't need no money, you gotta pay with your heart
O sharon, what do you do to these men?
You know the same rowdy crowd that was here last
night is back again.
Well I went inside, looked around for a seat.
Then the lights went low, and the drums played a beat.
Out came this girl, dressed in a scarf and a sneeze,
she did a little dance that made me weak in the knees.
she danced just like her back had no bones.
while the band played a tune they called the Main Street Moan.
She smiled a smile the whole world could see.
and then She turned around, and looked staraight at me.
I must've jumped at least six feet in the air,
and when I came down, that girl wasn't there.
Oh Sharon, what do you do to these men?
You know the same rowdy crowd that was here last
night is back again.
Then Out come this guy with curly, red hair,
He had a big bushy beard , and he looked like a bear.
He said "Yuh stop yer shoutin' there's no more to the show
if you wanna breathe right, I think y'all better go Well I didn't think twice, I headed straight for the door, but on my way out, I heard that big bear roar
O Sharon, what do you do to these men?
You know the same rowdy crowd that was here last
night is back again.
Every time that show played, I was right there,
I stayed out off reach of that mean ole' bear.
And it was Just like the man said in his speech at the start,

when that carnie left town it took a piece of my heart.
I still get a funny feeling deep down in my bone,
every time I hear a band play that Main Street Moan.
O Sharon, what do you do to these men?
You know the same rowdy crowd that was here last
night is back again.
O Sharon, what do you do to these me?
You know the same rowdy crowd that was here last
night is back again.
