They were driving south on the highway
Their business was in another town
Bigger than the town they were driving from Business took place during office hours in both towns
This drive was considered business
The feeling of passing other cars was also considered business
A feeling of business being done
The feeling of drifting slowly through a field of moving vehicles
This was the real speed...the speed of business
Not the numbers on the speedometer
One of them was playing with the radio
Slowly changing the channel from one station to another
Sometimes listening to both channels at once
On one channel a man was talking to another man on the telephone.

The other channel was playing oldies:

Â"Gone for GoodÂ"
Â"Listening WindÂ"
Â"Puzzle PowerÂ"
Â"Beechwood SerenadeÂ"
Â"Sunshine and SugarÂ"
Â"Golden WindowsÂ"
Â"Taste of BelievingÂ"
Â"Carnival GirlÂ"
Â"Love Walks AwayÂ"
Â"Wishing WellÂ"
Â"Knew You CouldÂ"
Â"A Face Like ThatÂ"
Â"Dark HighwayÂ"
Â"Shakin' VenusÂ"
Â"Colored WheelsÂ"
Â"Visit Me QuickÂ"
Â"Lonesome MoneyÂ"
Â"School of HeartacheÂ"
Â"Painted SmilesÂ"

The sound of business being done.
