Dream Big - Emily Shackleton

When I was a little girl
I swore that I would change the world when I grew up.
Nothing else would be enough

Back then it all seemed black and white
But these days I just cant seem to find the child in me
Who always believed

I see it everyday
We settled for safe
And lose ourselves along the way

But if u dont dream big whats the use in dreaming.
If u dont have faith theres nothing worth believing.
It takes one hope to make the stars worth reaching for.
So reach out, for something more

Took a well perfected plan
For me to finally understand
But its not me
Faith is something I can't see
I lose the reigns and let them go
I broke the chains of fear
That had their hold on me too long
When all I felt was wrong

Ive wiped my tears away now its time for a change

No I cant waste another day

Coz if u dont dream big whats the use in dreaming.
If u dont have faith theres nothing worth believing.
It takes one hope to make the stars worth reaching for.

So close your eyes and tell me what you see between what's real and make believe here's the path we've all been searching for
So reach out, for something more than you ever could imagine then move don't wait for it to happen life's too short for not taking chances the stars are far as they seem

But if u dont dream big whats the use in dreaming.
If u dont have faith theres nothing worth believing.
It takes one hope to make the stars worth reaching for.
So reach out, for something more

So close your eyes and tell me what you see
between what's real and make believe
here's the path we've all been searching for
So reach out, for something more
