I remember when you walked through that door
Sat down on that chair
The times we shared
But you've been here

Only the chair I sat in remembers my scent
After you left cold silence,
A small café that is waiting for you

Yo ice coffee espresso double shot that has become a habit
Close my eyes, carefully just one sip
Flowing music that we enjoyed listening to My heart keeps beating faster
I remember the nervousness I felt when we first met
Borrowing strength from the caffeine
Her sugar syrup that I always carried
I hate this stickiness now

Oh please, don't leave me alone
What do I do?
Why does everyone want to leave me alone
On a night, where everyone's asleep?
Tell me the truth,
Today, different from yesterday, is too late
Saying the promises, everything we said to each other
They're all lies, don't make me fool

Only the chair I sat in remembers my scent
After you left cold silence,
A small café that is waiting for you

You don't need my anymore than nervousness
Don't say that.. Right now you've tricked yourself
Into thinking that you dislike me
Our names we carved into the old desk
In memories, just buried there

Oh my God, even though it's buried
It still doesn't work
The thing that has found me is panic
It bothers me inside my insecure mentality

Alone in a room with the lights turned off
I'm an unhappy artist
Remembering you while drawing you
Our tragic love that has become our only masterpiece
My heart is still a gallery full of you
Outside Seoul without you is a bleak dessert

Only the chair I sat in remembers my scent
After you left cold silence,
A small café that is waiting for you

When you're lonely,
I'll always be waiting for you
On the days I want to see you,
I'm calling you
With the coffee I made you, and the folded bookmark
Rain that only flows above you white house baby

Only the chair I sat in remembers my scent
After you left cold silence,
A small café that is waiting for you

When you're lonely
(Only the chair I sat in remembers my scent)
On the days I want to see you
(After you left cold silence, )
The coffee I made you
(A small café that is waiting for you)
Rain that only flows above your white house baby
