Shes just a haunted woman
They look away from her
She understands their silent curse

They say she knows the devil
Invites him in her home
But shes not evil, just alone

I watch her wander slowly
All through her darkened house
It seems theres one else about

But then I see a flicker
A flame runs down the floor
And someones slipping out the door
She looks to my direction
With sorrow in her eyes
She gives no confession
Silent as she dies
Now shes gone
The fire takes her home
My vision fades in flames
And another dream is done
