I don't like to ask you
But there are no choices left
On that fateful day
When you wore your wedding dress
Did the sun shine brightly
The clouds just drift on through
The way that clouds on wedding days should do

So don't you stay
Another day
Let your heart
Go on it's way
Does your blood run thin like water
Does he treat you like he ought to
I guess it's time you should be on your way

Were there tears upon your lips
The day you made your vow
Words rang out around the church
Do you hear them now?
Did the preacher take your hand
Gently place the ring
Did the congregation stand to sing

Now don't you stay
Another day
Let your heart
Go on it's way
Does your blood run thin like water
Does he treat you like he ought to
I guess it's time you should be on your way

We keep the darkest lies
For the sweetest smiles
We keep our best goodbyes
For the hardest miles
For the coldest night
Yea

So don't you stay
Another day
Let your heart

Go on it's way
Does your blood run thin like water
Does he treat you like he ought to
Guess it's time you should be on your way

Don't you stay
Another day
Let your heart
Go on it's way
Does your blood run thin like water?
Does he treat you like he ought to?

I guess it's time you should be on your way
