Waiting for so long for you to get this through your head

This conversation ends
You will never understand Bout anything or anyone Or where we are coming from

You coil me up as you leave me there drenched in my words as you spit them back at me

I never would have thought it would have come to this The words of your selfishness to come

This conversation ends

You will never understand bout anything or anyone Where we are coming from

You say that you learn from mistakes but how much more abuse will you take from a person that never cared for you How you were scared that she will leave you but she only deceives you

This conversation ends
You will never understand bout anything or anyone
Or where we are coming from from Where we are coming from

Understanding the end when it's what what we express to you
That lock it's holding you down your trapping yourself to anything she wants what she wants
