We're swirling in and out lanes with our coinciding pains would you calm down please? and though you say its not the case we're full of irony and space and you know it but oh youve known it all along you say this constant change in plans is tossed about in plastic hands dont you feel that?

and though we're out here on our own we're a thousand miles from home we could make it, and we could take this in our hands we could fall between these lines if you would work with me i could pull you from this cellar, we could break these chains together and you'll become just what you were always meant to be

from this darkness we're escaping as we're climbing from the belly of the sea and all these battle lines were placed though their meaning's been erased into silence and so we stayed and stood our ground though they were nowhere to be found we were so afraid but we just stood on anyway and we could fall between these lines if you would work with me

chains together

dont you wait you know that you were made for this (x2)

we could fall between these lines if you would work with
me
chains together
from this darkness we're escaping
