So claustrophobic hard to keep breathing and all at once hope fades into gray, Shelter falls all around and you just save the face that you will not wear
You drag the waters and your soul forgets that it's alive
Shedding your blood just like diseased tears
And all for nothing can't cure what can't be saved
To give up ending life if only for one second
Your world is not benign drowning in the weight of life
Swallow yourself and choke
Simple resistance begins this hour your conjured opinion sure to mean nothing Suffer for the moment fault you've won will it be the price of your pride
To give up ending life if only for one second

Your world is not benign drowning in the weight of life
Swallow yourself and choke Hollowing the main artery that keeps your going Filter the filth inside into one small bite Take this away cannot bear the end
So simple not to breathe at all seems so simple to die
To give up ending life if only for one second
Your world is not benign drowning in the weight of life
Swallow yourself and choke
Inhale the excess toxic emissions all just to extend another perfect day Cannot stay any longer so farewell Farewell to all the worthless products of your failign world
You drag the waters for your soul forget it it's over.
