sleeping in a world with all kind of races
walking all around through millions of places
even in my own town there are boundaries of races drawn between love and hate and difference in faces

but in heaven, will there still be races?
will there still be difference in faces?
in heaven, will there still be races?
will we still be puking on each others head?

sleeping in a world with all kind of races
walking all around through millions of places
little children crying for just being different the blood is all around, (blood) from brown coloured faces

will there still be a difference in faces?
will we still be pissing on each others head?

sleeping in a world, where they beat rodney king faces
walking all around through millions of places
even in your own town, there are boundaries of races tears on other cheeks, (cheeks) from black coloured
faces

will there still be a difference in faces?
will we still be shitting on each others head?
