Delirious? "Every Little Thing"

Everything must change There's a mirror showing me the ugly truth These bones they ache with holy fire But I've got nothing to give, just a life to live If your world is without colour I will carry you, if you carry me, yeaah

Every little thing's gonna be alright Every little thing's gonna be alright Every little thing's gonna be alright Every little thing's gonna be alright

There's no-one else to blame I live my life between the fire and the flame I've built my house where the ocean meets the land It's time to live again, pull my dreams out of the sand Let your world be full of colour I will carry you, if you carry me, yeah

Every little thing's gonna be alright Every little thing's gonna be alright Every little thing's gonna be alright Every little thing's gonna be alright, yeah Every little thing's gonna be alright Every little thing's gonna be alright

When it's all falling down on you You're crying out but you're breaking in two When it's all crashing down on you When there's nothing you can do There is someone who can carry you

Every little thing, every little thing, every little thing, is gonna be alright

Every little thing's gonna be alright (x6)
