To others the pain was obvious
The colours of a shame a bruise unjust
Abuse of trust can't be wiped

I can't remember why
I chose to say goodbye
I'm terrified of what I might have severed

I tried to forget the drowning truth
Lashing inside my sea of youth
Life seemed a fair sacrifice for peace

I can't remember why
I chose to say goodbye
I'm terrified of what I might have severed
I ended up too high
But never learned to fly
So coming down I'm very thankful

I can't remember why
I chose to say goodbye
I'm terrified of what I might have severed
I ended up too high
But never learned to fly
So coming down I'm very thankful
