The changing times have caused me to see me for what I am
But I know you, you taught me oh so well to just ignore (Ignore the things that my heart beats for) Life with you, it's complicating like a crowded room
I thought you'd died, but with morning rising I see you're still alive

And I can't let go... even though I know you're not too
good for me
It's a terrifying flight when darkness overrides the light
But I can't let go, must let go, can't let go... even though I know you're not too good for me.

The times we had were so much fun and me, I loved to laugh
But something's wrong--my rebirth came and said that we can't last (Cut the cord and place you in the past)
But I still love the things we did together once before
And now I'm torn between new life and an open sore

And I can't let go... even though I know you're not too
good for me
It's a neverending flight that only leads me through the night
But I can't let go, must let go, can't let go...
even though I know you're not too good for me.
