Come, distorted heartless beasts that roam the sepulchre
My starving razor severs the leash to let loose my pack upon the flock of god

For centuries we've searched the Earth
Within full moons and forest hiding towards rebirth
And again we re-open Pandora's box
And flank the bastard christ with mutiny and revolt That wickedness and sin-flushed evil may reign in hell once more Then rising against oppression we tore away to silhouette the suns of dawn

However 'midst a whirl of politics and warfare my illustrious bride was taken From the sanctuary of shadowy midnight, forest moor the Demon Lord was mistaken And he cursed aloud breaking the silence, a code our legions swear to I ventured aloof, searching for proof and found Her twisted broken shoe

Following the beaten track he rode the high and wintry night
For king and kindred sin, to avenge and exacerbate their plight
High on the tails he drew a long sword And with a flash of burnished lightning reinstated the casualties of war

"The clanging of steel it rapes mine ears Behold the dying courts men writing at my feet
Their outstretched hands cling to a lifeless despair

A rancid stench of defiled rotting flesh infuses the air"

The winds begin to rent their wintry spite
The skies are darkened behind a pall of ageless storm clouds
Weaker fauna scurry away to take shelter
And the battle fields are veiled in a thunderous icy shroud

Desperation plagues me
Translucent memories of grander pastimes
Wherein Tyranny would grace With ardent passions and sinful signs Alas, Eden lies in ruin
In silence and desolation Abandoned by god to a strategic position

Sodom cried for nights retreat
Death arose sanctity, latent regrets unthought Drowning silk sheets in crimson death
For the morrow's insights forget
She walked in the shadow of the rose Played out Her will for every delight

"I am the dusk bringing my spite to all thy needs and all thou shalt see"

Cast into temptation scorn an angel not content Further drawn to an ever tempering dawn Magnificence in Her grace, nobility faced Yet pains condemn Her passions constrained Tyranny bring thy dusk embracing night Fall into temptation with grace
