what looks like failure is success and what looks like poverty is riches when what is true looks more like a knife it looks like you're killing me but you're saving my life

chorus

but i give myself to what looks like love and i sell myself for what feels like love and i pay to get what is not love and all just because i see things upside down what looks like weakness can do anything and what looks like foolishness is understanding when what is powerful has not come to fight it looks like you're going to war but you lay down your life

what looks like torture is a time to rejoice what sounds like thunder is a comforting voice when what is beautiful looks broken and crushed and i say i don't know you but you say it's finished
when what is beautiful looks broken and crushed
