

Deric Ruttan

"Invisible"

Visit "Invisible" on MotoLyrics.com

I was standing down in front of Johnson's grocery
Thinking 'bout the way it was when you were with me
All the pain of losin' you is still so fresh
Saw you comin' up the street, you looked angry
Tried to smile so you could see, you looked past me
Had to be the strangest feeling I've ever felt

Am I supposed to be invisible now?
Find a way to disappear somehow?
Just a ghost haunting your past
Reaching out to touch you with invisible hands
Where do people go when they just go away?
I wake up and I'm still here, everyday
But you're expecting me to be invisible

Thought I'd found the tie that binds in your love
In a way it defined who I was
Now it's gone and so are you
So who am I am I supposed to be invisible now?
Find a way to disappear somehow?
Just a ghost haunting your past
Reaching out to touch you with invisible hands
Where do people go when they just go away?
I wake up and I'm still here, everyday
But you're expecting me to be invisible

Am I supposed to be invisible now?
Find a way to disappear somehow?
Just a ghost haunting your past
Reaching out to touch you with invisible hands
Where do people go when they just go away?
I wake up and I'm still here, everyday
But you're expecting me to be invisible
You're expecting me to be
Invisible

Visit Deric Ruttan page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.