Right into the rage of war
Through the noises of fire and explosions
A man is fighting against two things
The enemies and his own mind

Killing everyone in sight
On his side or not
He doesn't even care
Forgetting all about himself

Seeing guts spilling
And blood quivering
Even rays of the sun wouldn't be able
To enlighten his darkened spirit

Running amongst the corpses
Holding his weapon tight
He now feels the fear emerging
Knowing that he could end up like them
Even his own visions of mutiny
Wasn't that horrific

Caught in the middle of the battle
Behind the enemy's lines
Aware that his defeat is imminent
He started to panic

Crawling in a long grass zone
Seeking for a way out
He is now the prey
And not the predator anymore

Remembering his family
And what he's done so far

The man recover his breath
To return to the battlefield

Back on his feet he realizes
That it isn't going any better
Looking all around him
How knows he won't last long

Pain suddenly struck his left arm
He just got shot from behind

Covered by the blood of his injury
He falls to the ground

Hearing death whispering to him
Feeling his life vanishing
Someone gets close to him
Puts a gun to his head
And finishes him

The last thing that passed through his mind
Was a feeling of hate... about humanity and it's logic
