"Freedom To Preach"

I'm not against freedom of speech,
But I'm against freedom to preach.
I think we should all believe,
In just what we want to believe.
There's just one thing that bothers me:
You're fucking talking down to me,
Telling me how I should be.
What will it take to make you see?
It's just your point of view, personal attitude
I've sworn never to impose, my own opinions onto you.
It's just your point of view.
Well no one ever changed:
An opinion through intimidation,
All that ever did was breed fear and hate.
Well I'm not questioning your faith,
And I'm not trying to discriminate.
There's an idea here I'm trying to relay,
It's just your point of view, personal attitude
I've sworn never to impose, my own opinions onto you.
I'll tell you how it seems to me -
Beneath the layers of dignity,
Behind your pedophile priests; Isn't it all about money?
Philosophies that guide the weak,
Designed to keep the people sweet -
Provide a sense of security -
Provide a moral loyalty,
So I'll wait for the day
When we can all stand on our own two feet,
And those who still choose to believe
Will do it independently.
