I know you since our parents met
Before we used to walk
We grew up fast
We went our ways again

The friendship of my childhood
But we didn't care about
Now the reunion
Suddenly you blow my mind

And now I see you differently
And now I see you in another light
Now I see you differently
And to say that I don't miss you
To say that I don't miss you it's too late

A girl, a boy but way too young
To care too much about
Now things have changed
I don't know if it's good

My change of view, it irritates me
Have I ever had a choice
And what the hell
Am I supposed to do right now

'Cause now I see you differently
And now I see you in another light
Now I see you differently
And to say that I don't miss you
Say that you don't miss me, it's too late

And can he go back now
And can he try to make it as before
And does she care at all
And will he try to make it as before

'Cause now he sees her differently
And now he sees her in another light
Now he sees her differently
And to say he doesn't miss her
To say he doesn't miss her it's too late
