"The Awakening"

When all lights die and time still leaves you in wonder why it's a farcry from where you've been before And when I reach out, you try to run but won't come closer
I wish we could ignore that nothing stays the same anymore

This time it's for the taking, in time new morning's breaking Dance to the past it's dead and gone
This is the new awakening for every truth that I seek Sing to the past it's dead and gone

Like the sunlight yesterday turns into shadow, that after midnight comes knocking at my door
If I could break out, could try to rise from undercover I think we could ignore that nothing stays the same

Up, get up, we fall and falter
On, get on to something better Don't let the gravity pull you down, I said
