I walk into the room
And all I see is you
In that evening dress, that evening dress

I take a few feet closer
I can feel your heart beat from over here
And now we're face to face
I put my hands on your waist
And everything disappears

But only these things happen in my dreams
Where I know they will never leave my head
Take your time getting close to me
Close to me,
But deep down inside you know your not a mystery
A mystery to me
Things heated up a bit
You can tell from all of the sweat that dripped
From everything I've done before this even started
