I knew it was something else its always easier to believe what they say you filled that void of emptiness i must acknowledge failure each time i see you thoughts were once perfect are now as fragile as glass and break in a whisper sincerity is meaningless like words on a paper when i opened up to you, so impressionable i am but a stained glass reflection of stupidity i am but a paper model, to experiment with, do with me as you must (6x)

i dredge on, so open so vulnerable i'll make sure that i'll will be more than i was that time.
never again to pass through these same things, this is but a mere shadow of who i will be
