You were born with a heart that can never be filled
And a head like snow that can never be still
There are streets paved with gold that shine so bright
But you force yourself to look away
If we can't see now we might never see
We only kill ourselves more slowly
If you can't find love than you will finally see
How we kill ourselves slowly
The words that fall from your mouth
They crystallize and break on the ground

And everything you want you don't have
But you force yourself to look away
If we can't see now we might never see
We only kill ourselves more slowly
If you can't find love than you will finally see
How we kill ourselves...slowly
If you can't find love
Than you can't find me
If you close your eyes
Than you will finally see
That you're already here with me
