I see your shadow coming closer
And watch you drifting out me, I know
You will make it on your own
You can run out of everything
And everything is you

I must've missed that you were leaving
I saw your lipstick on the mirror right here
All of a sudden it was all clear
You just ran out of everything
And everything is said

But did you know I was blind for you?
Did you know 'bout the fantasies I had?
And where the answers won't come around
I blame myself for being me again and again

I'm surrounded by your photographs
I guess I never learn about today's
And will I ever learn? I wonder
I would ran after anything
And anything is not you

Did you know I was blind for you?
Did you know 'bout the fantasies I had?
And where the answers won't come around
I blame myself for being me again, again

I must've missed your call, I missed it all

But did you know I was blind for you?
Did you know you meant everything to me?
And if I had one more chance, this time
I would have meant the world to you

I blame myself for being such a fool
