"Forgiveness"

Steel gray
Colors are devoured, a warning
She Builds up her defenses to save her from decay
it starts to fade away

No, it can't be forgiven
You can't find forgiveness, . . . if you try

A light heart
Doesn't need protection, or shelter
Her smile is other-worldly
Giving unconditional love
Only from the heart

In the battle of the weak they were so far from home
Thinking, how to be strong?
Hear the uniform screaming with his hands up high
Saying, don't get me wrong!

Today is already gone
We can leave as dust, or dreams
