"Bye, Bye Missy"

Tea time Monday night, I was waiting passing time Then from the hallway, I saw Mother in her nightgown Swaying up the stairs, up the stairs, it seemed so unreal
I knew Grandma' had sent "THEM" again, the invisible friends

A little later in the middle of tea we came close to ecstasy
"THEY" were telling tales from beyond when Grandma' rose

She opened the door, and there was Missy Seeing Mother in Grandmother's chair, she went into tears

Missy was screaming
"What have You done, what have you done to My Ma", crying louder now
"We better get rid of her, She's too young anyway", it was Grandma' who spoke

"Bye, bye Missy, be gone forever
The beautiful fireplace in the kitchen will do"

Guitar solo: Andy, Guitar solo: Pete

I saw Missy struggling in Grandma' wrinkled hands
"Oh No, let me be, Oh No Please No
Grandma' Please
Aagh Grandma' You're hurting me.
Don't touch me or I'll break it, I've got the tea pot, I'll do it anyway"
I saw liquid spreading, the bloody tea all over the floor
Now I heard "THEIR" voices, some kind of demon growls
DIE - SHE BROKE AMON - AMON - DIE

Guitar solo: Pete, Guitar solo: Andy

"THEY" dropped "THEIR" tea cups,

Grandma' stood still forced by invisible hands, Missy went down the stairs
As I waved her goodbye, Missy was sobbing away

Will I ever see her again, Bye bye Missy, don't be afraid
