The baby cries I could almost die from lonesome
The late show's gone and the coffee's on I think I reach some Somewhere out there my love you share but your thoughts are far from home But when the lights on Broadway go off and every honky tonk is closed up My arms stay open late so you'll come home

What you do is wrong but my love stays strong for you I don't think I'll change a thing at all I might lose you Though it's almost dawn and you're still not at home I'll wait here patiently For the lights to my love never go off and the door to my heart don't close up
My arms stay open late so you'll come home
