

Bill Miller

"The Final Word"

Visit "The Final Word" on MotoLyrics.com

Every word that you have spoken
And the promises you made
All the laws that you have broken
Some day these debts must be repaid

Every stone will be turned over
And we will see your ugly past
You stole the land, you'll never own her
These evil ways they will not last

Someday their souls will be free
And their voices will be heard
As far as every eye can see
They will have the final word

Every weed in every garden
And all the crops that ever died
While you were full and they were starvin'
My children will not be denied

And every fire that you have started
Every fist you threw my way
For all the families you have parted
The innocent will have their day

Someday these souls will be set free
And their voices will be heard
As far as every eye can see
They will have the final word

Every word that you have spoken
And the promises you made
All the laws that you have broken
Some day these debts must be repaid

Someday their souls will be free
And their voices will be heard
As far as every eye can see
They will have the final word

