I'll wear the jewels you gave me around my neck tonight
though I know
you won't be there

And I'll wear them in a gold chain
It catches in the light though I know of course you won't appear

And I'll leave the party early after a drink or two And I'll check my phone for calls though I know there will be none from you, from you.

I'll walk home with snow falling
Deep heart, frozen lungs
And I'll leave all those celebrating
All the things that they have done

I'll come over to your office
And watch 'em come and go
Though I know
I won't see you there

And I'll take a train down to the coast
And sit and watch a scene
I'll be sitting there Alone

And as usual above all things
I'll miss you every day
Without pause

Happy new year my darling
Happy new year

I'll walk home with snow falling
Deep heart, frozen lungs,
And I'll leave all those celebrating
All the things that they have done

Happy new year my darling
Happy new year
