The birds are singing in your eyes this day
Sweet flowers blossom in your smile
The wind and sun are in the words you say
Where might your lonesome lover be?

Birds maybe singing in my eyes this day
Sweet flowers blossom when I smile,
But my soul is stormy and my heart blows wild,
My sweetheart rides a ship on the sea

Oh my soul is stormy and my heart blows wild,
Where might my lonesome lover be?

WORDS: Woody Guthrie - MUSIC: Billy Bragg 1997
