And in the end
I'm sure I'll know it's
My mistake
We're forsaken

And in the end
I'm sure I'll know it's
My mistake
We're forsaken

[Missing lyrics]

There's a price to pay
There's a price to pay

How long can we wait?

I can't see anyway
This could be healthy to do
I guess I hoped we could find another way
To just get through

And sometimes I'm feelin' that
That I should find a way out of this mess

Oh, I guess we'll make a way
This isn't healthy to do
I guess I hope we can find another way
To just get through

This is none of your business
? this is not

This is none of your business
This is some of your business

There is nowhere to hide
In a room so full of eyes

Until we die we're never satisfied
We'll lust for and feed the dissatisfaction of want and need

Oh, yeah...

Can I tell you a secret?
While your voice hung thick in the waves
You were mistaken if you thought I could behave
I was not afraid

But little honey I needed
I needed a reminder from you
There sure ain't nothin' like the sight of your fine skin
From across the room

Oh, yeah!
This sure seems so familiar
The same feelings that I thought I had lost We're only waiting to come in through another door at another cost
And why?

'Cause we reap what we sow and it's a difficult crop
But we keep cutting down
Yet it grows again
Still it grows again
