Columbus did not discover this land. - He did.
Oceans didn't just make themselves. - He did.
You know skies weren't born deepest blue.
Stars didn't simply fall there too.
Joy didn't plant itself in you. - He did.

Mountains didn't just raise by themselves. - He did
Rivers didn't find the seashore alone. - He did.
You know time didn't carve the canyon wall.
Rain didn't simply want to fall.
Who bent down to make it all? - He did.

Golden sun, silver moon,
He gave us these and more.
Rolled the world into a ball and placed love at it's core.

Wind didn't make the desert drifts. - He did.
No one else grew timbers tall. - He did.
Ah, who do you think taught birds to fly,
Painted rainbows on the sky,
Who do you think made you and I? - He did.

(Instrumental)

Golden sun, silver moon,
He gave us these and more.
Rolled the world into a ball and placed love at it's core.

Wind didn't make the desert drifts. - He did.
I mean no one else grew timbers tall. - He did.
Tell me, who do you think taught birds to fly,
Painted rainbows on the sky,
Who do you think made you and I?

Skies weren't born deepest blue.
Stars didn't simply fall there too.
And love didn't plant itself in you.

I said time didn't carve the canyon wall.
Rain didn't simply want to fall.
I'll tell you who bent down to make it all. - He did.
