I'd bring you back if I knew how
But our world's all over now

The world was our private little merry-go-round
The lilt of our laughter made a beautiful sound
We were so in love

Each night the moon used to wait for us
Before it would shine
But that was long ago

And now the wine is young
Our dreams are old
Love has come and gone
And it hurts me more than I can bear to go on alone

I'd bring you back if I knew how
But our world's all over now

My lips long to kiss you like they kissed you before
My arms would do anything to hold you once more
What a love we shared

We owned the stars
Half of them were yours
The others were mine
But that was long ago

And now the wine is young
Our dreams are old
Love has come and gone
And it hurts me more than I can bear to go on alone

I'd bring you back if I knew how
But our world's all over now and so is love

What a love we shared
We owned the stars
Half of them were yours
The others were mine
But that was long ago
