What could I do
But what You ask me to do?
And where could I go
But where You want me to go?
How could I live but by the truth You know?
How could I smile when I know you weep?
And what would I have with so many in need?
What could I give but all you ask of me?

You are the light in my darkness
You're the current that pushes me back to the shore
You are the light in my darkness
You open a window when they close the door
You are the light in my darkness
You're the wind that keep pushing me up towards the sky
You are the light in my darkness

You keep me from wandering blind through the night
You're the light, You're the light

How could I breathe
Without the weight of Your breath?
And what could I see
But the light in your eyes?
What alone am I but half of who I am
When I'm with You

You are the light in my darkness
You are the light in my darkness
