

Disciple "Lay My Burdens"

Visit "Lay My Burdens" on MotoLyrics.com

There are things that I'll never understand
The road I've walked that has made me who I am
Reminiscing with the picture on the wall again
Reminding me just how far away I've been

I'm looking to lay my burdens down
They're something I can't carry anymore
I'm longing to lay my body down
Beside still waters and find rest for my soul

My knees are weak and my mind is tired
I've followed every dream of every liar
If there's a place that you've prepared for me that I belong
Then let these dry bones arise to live and breathe your song

I'm looking to lay my burdens down
They're something I can't carry anymore
I'm longing to lay my body down
Beside still waters and find rest for my soul

What once was dead has now come alive
What once was dead has now come alive
What once was dead, oh
What once was dead has now come alive

I'm looking to lay my burdens down
They're something I can't carry anymore
I'm longing to lay my body down
Beside still waters and find rest for my soul

(I'm looking to lay my burdens down)
I just can't carry, I just can't carry anymore
(I'm longing to lay my body down)
Beside still waters and find rest for my soul

Visit Disciple page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.