There are days when all the color turns to grey
And it feels like there's no solice from the pain
And I'm on my knees asking for a reason why
But the answers all seem miles and miles away

We are all designed to hope
Built to long for something more
So I will hold on, hold on, cause we will overcome

Someday, we will rise above the pain of this world
Someday, the grave and death will lose their stay
There will be no more tears and no more shame
And all our scars will fade away
Only love will remain, someday
Someday

Well they say You make beauty out of ash
But something has to burn before you can
So I will trust you while I am
Some will live in the shadowlands
You won't leave me, You see me
This is not the end

Someday, we will rise above the pain of this world
Someday, the grave and death will lose their stay
There will be no more tears and no more shame
And all our scars will fade away
Only love will remain, someday
Someday

Someday we will call this home
Someday death will lose it's hold
Until then we will hold on, hold on

We will rise above
We will rise above
Someday, we will rise above the pain of this world
Someday, the grave and death will lose their stay
There will be no more tears and no more shame
And all our scars will fade away
Only love will remain, someday

Someday we will call this home
Someday death will lose it's hold
Until then we will hold on, hold on
Someday
