All I see inside
Is a longing for something that's outside
This understanding of The sun breaking open and it shines over me, shines over me

I can see order in the way
That the oceans rise and roll out again
I can see order in the way
That the flowers die to bloom again

And I know that there is something
Out there watching everything
I know there's something out there
Even if I can't see
I know that there is someone out there
Watching over me
I know there's someone out there
Even if I can't see

Silence in this night
A million ballads to something far from sight
With an unspoken name
And in my reflection, image from some other time, some other time

I can see order in the way
That the oceans rise and roll out again
I can see order in the way
That the flowers die to bloom again

And I know that there is something
Out there watching everything
I know there's something out there
Even if I can't see
I know that there is someone out there
Watching over me
I know there's someone out there
Even if I can't see

Even though I can't see
The fingerprints are everywhere

I can see order in the way
That the oceans rise and roll out again
I can see order in the way
That the flowers die to bloom again

And I know that there is something
Out there watching everything
I know there's something out there
Even if I can't see
I know that there is someone out there
Watching over me
I know there's someone out there
Even if I can't see
