In a whirlwind caught away
Broken lips have carried you to a place Where you don't know just how you ever got this far away from here
Thinking somehow you could cross the point of no return
But my love will never end

Whatever reason you've been running
I just don't care anymore
Already forgotten whatever happened with what went wrong
I just want you to come home

Incarcerated, borrowed shame
Freedom was the promise they took away
And now you're left with what you find so hard is forgiving yourself
Thinking somehow you could cross the point of no
return
But my love will never end

Whatever reason you've been running
I just don't care anymore
Already forgotten whatever happened with what went
wrong
I just want you to come home

I see something far away
Could this be the day to take you in these arms
And wash all of the wasted days and years away
Just to see the eyes of my beloved child
Now I'm running
I'm the one that's running

Whatever reason you've been running
I just don't care anymore
Already forgotten whatever happened with what went
wrong
I just want you to come home

Come home

Come home
Come home
