"The Long Way Down To Eden"

Only one step away from the core
One tiny step to purge the soul
One more vision to shatter

Oh, come sweet dreams
Sweet illusions of a bleak
I see the vipers in the distance
as they come to feed me.

How I long for you, For the fever of your embrace
For the taste of desire

An endless shroud of agony
But still I wallow in its eternity
I see the vipers in the distance
as they come to feed me.

I never reckoned today could bear a light
As I awoke this morning it felt as any other night.
I sense your presence close to me
and every fiber of my feverish body
feeds on your raving shine.

I never reckoned today could bear a light
As I awoke this morning it felt as any other night.
Torments of Soul released in an instant
A breath with the lungs of a torn
And the heart of an infant.
What a content sentiment it was

To lay beside her, her sweet caress.

"How I longed for you,
For the fever of your embrace
For the taste of desire"

An endless shroud of agony
But still I wallow in its eternity
I see the vipers in the distance
as they come to feed me.

Another night has settled, another day had passed
Another cry I spilled, another tear at night.

"This is the long way down to Eden"
I heard her say when she left,"
But what is the way,
what must I know before to walk it?"
"That nothing is certain, but uncertainty!".

I never reckoned today could bear a light
As I awoke this morning it felt as any other night.
I sense your presence close to me
and every fiber of my feverish body
feeds on your raving shine.
I never reckoned today could bear a light
As I awoke this morning it felt as any other night.
