Take one there was never a question
Take two it just wasn't the same
A chance for things to work out right was lost before I could even try
Think back to the place where it started
Think back to how this used to be Another place, a different time
That perfect life that isn't mine

Taking all that's left in me to get me through the day

And breathe, just let me breathe
I've been drowning now forever
And I'm backed against a wall
Breathe, just let me breathe
I've been drowning now forever
And was this worth it?

I gave in to what you always needed
I gave up on how I used to be
This little thing that you call life
Has lost us all and passed us by
I know now that I shouldn't have waited

I know now things are not what they seem
Another way, a different time
That perfect life that wasn't mine

Taking all that's left in me to get me through the day

And breathe, just let me breathe
I've been drowning now forever
And I'm backed against a wall
Breathe, just let me breathe
I've been drowning now forever
And was this worth it?

And breathe, just let me breathe
I've been drowning now forever
And I'm backed against a wall
Breathe, just let me breathe
I've been drowning now forever

And was this worth it?
